

Grand jury is expected to give statement on police

Gov. and Mrs. Dolph Briscoe are greeted at the entrance to the WTSU activities center by University President Lloyd I. Watkins. Briscoe was keynote speaker Friday at a meeting of the Panhandle Economic Program here.

US must be independent in providing own fuel

The United States must become independent of other nations in the world for its energy resources, Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe told a packed audience Friday afternoon in Canyon in a speech which hit on a wide range of topics.

Briscoe, featured speaker for the Panhandle Economic Program's fourth annual meeting held on the West Texas State University campus, told the crowd he has urged governors of other states in the U.S. to begin exploring for oil and natural gas supplies in their states to help the country become independent.

He said he's encountered some difficulty in convincing other states' governors that Texas is running at full speed to produce oil to meet the fuel crisis and that the problem cannot be solved by simply turning another valve.

"I told the other governors we'd do our best to meet the energy needs of the country," he said, "but, I told them we expect other states to do the same, to drill their share as we have done."

Briscoe said in spite of the fuel crisis which has made scarce quantities of diesel fuel and fertilizer needed by Texas farmers to harvest crops this year he is optimistic that agriculture can survive.

Noting that agriculture is the only asset this country has in its balance of payments column in foreign trade, Briscoe said it can weather the storm and continue to keep the country the top producer in the world.

In an effort to assure a market for Texas products, Briscoe cited his recent trade mission to Japan to sell grain and beef. He said Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby will lead a similar trade mission to Europe early next year to increase

Neblett doctors mum on WT student charges

By ANN MELIN

Bound by law and ethics from discussing their cases, physicians at Neblett Clinic could venture little comment regarding several complaints by West Texas State University students that led the Student Senate to pass a resolution Monday calling for an immediate investigation into the medical services for students at the facility.

The resolution, drafted by Senate president Bettie Jo Davidson, called for an investigation "because of serious incidents which have been called to our attention concerning the quality of medical care for students at Neblett Clinic."

Miss Davidson said that in the past two weeks she personally has received four complaints from students regarding their treatment at the clinic. "I think these grievances have been in the air for a long time, but not until now has anybody gotten hot enough to file a complaint," she said.

She cited one incident in which a freshman girl fell ill and was taken to Neblett Clinic where she was treated by a doctor who gave her a commercial antacid and told her to go home. Later, the girl's family doctor diagnosed her illness as hypoglycemia (abnormal decrease of blood sugar).

A six-member committee headed by Miss Davidson has been formed for the investigation, which is slated to begin Monday when the investigative group meets with the Student Life Committee. The two committees will be working together in the investigation, Miss Davidson said.

Dr. Charles R. Nester, senior physician at Neblett, said he had not been notified about the Senate's intentions and only heard about the resolution "through the grapevine."

Dr. Nester said he was awaiting formal notification from the

A statement or recommendation is expected to be made public Monday afternoon following a session of the Randall County Grand Jury, probably concerning "the general state of law enforcement in the community."

Grand Jury Foreman

Dr. James R. Underwood Jr. said the session will center around discussion of "the results of our talk with the (Amarillo) city commission and possibly to issue a statement or recommendation."

The jury is scheduled to meet at 2:15 p.m. in the Canyon courthouse.

Underwood said he expects "there'll be a final statement coming out of it."

Amarillo news media have speculated that the grand jury, investigating for nearly a month, have focused on law enforcement in the city of Amarillo.

Randall County Dist. Atty. George Dowlen confirmed at least a portion of that speculation last week when he told the News it is "properly the function of the grand jury to go into the general state of law enforcement in the community."

Dowlen's response was in reply to a question on a recent Texas attorney general's opinion that grand juries should not issue statements on matters when criminal charges are not to be filed, or when indictments are not to be returned.

"The attorney general's opinion was directed more to preventing the grand jury from going into really far-out areas," he said.

Dowlen and Underwood confirmed that no witnesses have either been subpoenaed or asked to testify before the grand jury session Monday.

Grand jurors met with members of the Amarillo city commission two weeks ago behind closed doors for nearly two hours and then met the same day with Amarillo city manager John Stiff for several hours.

They had met previously with Amarillo Police Chief Paul Hulsey. And, they have met with the night dispatcher of the Amarillo Police Department.

Until this week official word on the focus of the grand jury's investigation has not been forthcoming.

City employees to walk rather than take ride

City employees who want to conduct business within five blocks of their offices will be conducting that business on foot as the result of energy conservation standards implemented Friday by the city department heads.

Seven requirements to conserve energy resources were discussed Friday morning by City Manager George Loudder and heads of city departments and following the meeting the standards were put into effect.

The standards are based on recommendations Loudder received from department heads for conserving energy.

One standard requires that "all business to be conducted by city employees within five blocks of their various offices shall be conducted without the use of vehicles."

Loudder and his department heads began work on the standards shortly after a nationally-televised speech by President Nixon calling on a mass and joint effort to reduce fuel consumption.

The city manager and city commissioners have previously discussed the possibility of purchasing smaller vehicles for city use in light of the pending energy shortage.

The standards implemented Friday include ones calling for: "Maintaining of office temperatures at between 65 and 68 degrees for the winter months. The regulation states that all open space areas and truck bays are to be maintained at temperatures between 50 and 55 degrees. In addition, the department heads are to ensure that heaters are running at maximum efficiency and that buildings are in proper repair to reduce energy consumption."

"Maintaining speeds in city vehicles not to exceed 50 miles per hour on trips outside the city of Canyon. 'It should be impressed on employees that this is not anticipated to be a short-term requirement,' the standards state."

"Employees to use available telephone service at every possible opportunity to minimize travel."

"The three other standards relate to use of vehicles and require that department heads formulate a policy regulating the use of vehicles. Department heads are also to analyze operations to insure vehicles are used appropriately and "where possible work gangs should be pooled and the minimum number of vehicles used."

The standards also encourage "where at all possible car pooling for lunch hours and transportation to and from work."

For travel outside the city of Canyon, the department heads are required to notify each of the other department heads about the trip so each department will have an opportunity to utilize the authorized travel. "Such notice should be made as early as possible and all trips which can be postponed should wait until there is a substantial amount of activity to be accomplished," the standards say.

Presidents warned years ago about oil crisis Sherman says

President Johnson and then President Nixon were warned as much as six years ago that this nation faced an inevitable fuel crisis, but failed to heed the warnings, State Sen. Max Sherman charged Friday morning.

As the warnings of impending disaster in the fuel industry fell on deaf ears in the administration, so has the warning of impending calamity in the Panhandle's water supply fallen on deaf ears of the public, Sherman said.

Speaking to the opening session of the Panhandle Economic Program's fourth annual meeting in Canyon, Sherman blasted the federal government for its initial refusal to face facts and then its inability to plan on a long-range basis.

Sherman charged that Congress and the President are currently involved in a hasty effort to do something about an energy crisis which has been in the making for a decade. They are, he said, simply reacting to the crisis, unprepared but forewarned.

The senator arrived at the West Texas State University activities center only hours after returning to the Panhandle from a three-day meeting on the energy crisis in Boston. He tied together the energy problems the country faces and the crisis in water shortages the Panhandle faces, noting that high energy costs were cited by the Corps of Engineers in a spring report which declared not feasible a Texas idea to transport water from the Mississippi River to the state by pipeline.

"I don't have to illustrate to you — you know the acute seriousness of the energy problem," Sherman said. "There are, though, parallels between the energy crisis and the water situation we face."

The most apparent parallel pointed up by Sherman was the attitude of those who could do something to solve both problems — in the case of the energy crisis the administration and in the case of the water problem, the Texas public.

During the 1967 Middle East crisis, the United States faced a minor energy crisis due to shortage of imported petroleum, he said. At that time, the Texas Railroad Commission, which regulates the oil industry in Texas, sent a letter to President Johnson explaining the "grave" problem which existed in the oil industry, he said.

The commission called for an administration policy to provide for more exploratory drilling, a crash program to ensure adequate supplies for the future.

At the same time, Sherman (See SHERMAN, page 3)

Gas rationing in WWII difficult accomplishment

Old-timers in New York City still tell of watching a gasoline tank truck wind along narrow streets with a parade of as many as 350 cars trailing behind waiting for him to stop so they could get their gasoline ration.

That, according to West Texas State University History Professor Pete Petersen, is a vivid example of the problems encountered when the federal government instituted gasoline rationing during World War II.

While the historical precedent is available for rationing of fuel in this country, he says, the precedent is also available for widespread bitterness and griping.

Petersen said gasoline rationing began early in the 1940s, and was a part of an overall effort by the government to limit fuel usage.

An initial attempt at cutting fuel usage was rationing of tires, he said, a plan initiated in January 1942.

Later that year, though, the government determined that tire rationing alone wasn't going to achieve their goal in cutting fuel consumption and rationing of gasoline was instituted with a goal of reducing car mileage to under 5000 miles per year per vehicle.

Before the war, cars were averaging about 9000 miles per year.

In an effort to save fuel, which was either unavailable or for exclusive use in the war effort, the government issued stickers to car owners through local citizen boards and gasoline could be had only through ration books.

Speed limits were reduced on the nation's highways to 35 miles per hour, also.

The original plan for rationing didn't work well, Petersen said, because of confusion on how to issue ration (See GAS, page 3)

Chamber seeking Amarillo overflow

Reacting to an apparent shortage of new homes in Amarillo, Canyon Chamber of Commerce directors Thursday discussed methods of attracting residents of that city who are seeking a new home to Canyon.

Apparently spurred by comments on a news-type program on an Amarillo television station, the board vowed to investigate various ways to tell Amarilloans about the new housing available in Canyon.

Director Jim Brown pointed out "we'd like to have some of those people come down here. We have lots of houses here and lots of room to build."

Board members said they will look into the possibility of purchasing advertising in Amarillo media to tell the Canyon story and will work with the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce.

In other business Thursday, the directors remained non-committal on encouraging local residents to decorate their businesses with Christmas lights this year.

Pee Wee Friemel shows children at Rex Reeves School the intricacies of conservation farming with the aid of an exhibit prepared by Don Dolle of the Soil Conservation Service. The display was for the Food and Fiber Fair held in the three city schools last week.

Urbanite students learn agriculture

Hundreds of Canyon school children, most of them rooted in urban living, learned last week the food they eat and the clothes they wear originate somewhere other than the grocery or clothing store.

One elementary-aged girl burst into tears when she learned the calf feeding on winter wheat this year will eventually become hamburger or steak for her plate.

The children were the primary viewers of the Randall County Food and Fiber Appreciation Fair sponsored at Rex Reeves and Gene Howe elementary schools and Canyon Junior High School by representatives of the county agriculture industry.

The children learned from Don Dolle, soil conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service here, for example the proper plowing methods to ensure maximum conservation of water and soil. Dolle manned a table-top display of a farm with steep hills and valleys.

A large display was prepared by local merchant Ken Thompson, who told the children of the four basic fibers — wool, cotton, leather and fibers produced by petroleum.

Our World

Obedience Needed To Make Us Free

By ANN BROWN

In the 17th century, the common people in Europe were in economic or spiritual bondage; many suffered both.

A few hardy souls, who possessed sufficient faith, courage, and physical stamina braved the mysterious ocean in search of freedom in the fabulous New World.

Through their faith and courage, the pilgrims found liberty. And their cherished liberty generated the energy to produce abundance.

The first Thanksgiving was celebrated in the little Plymouth colony so the survivors of the cold and hunger of the previous winter could offer thanks to God for their abundant supplies of food and fuel, and for His protecting care.

The pilgrims were admonished by their governor to gather in Church, with their wives and their children, to give thanks to God for His manifold blessings.

But as the good years multiplied, the abundance led to selfishness, and the selfishness to complacency. Eventually the pilgrims seemed to lose sight of the source of their blessing.

The majority of well-fed Americans simply accept the fact that we are a favored people in a favored land. So what.

And that kind of apathy trapped us into dependence, and dependence led us right back into the bondage our ancestors risked their all to escape.

Many families, and a few communities have left the "land of the free" because the apathy of the majority of Americans has cost us our freedom.

We relaxed the eternal vigilance that is still the price of liberty, and there has developed in this new land a government as despotic as any of our ancestors over the colonies.

And in these "affluent" times working and aged Americans are probably struggling harder to survive economically than they have since that first Thanksgiving in 1623.

But perhaps all is not lost. Our nation began with faith, and there are several indications that America may be experiencing a revival of faith.

America's first schools were Protestant church schools. Last year the number of Protestant schools increased by 66 percent. They are springing up in almost every town and city.

Memphis, Tenn., a victim of massive cross-town busing, has 85 new private schools. Twenty reportedly opened this year.

Finances are not always the greatest sacrifice required for private schools. Frequently, they divide communities, separate children from their friends, and deprive them of many worthwhile extra-curricular activities.

But schools are our bulwark of freedom. They are worth whatever sacrifice it requires to bring them back under parental supervision and free them from government control.

Freedom is of God; bondage is of Satan. Freedom is man's birthright, but he is doomed to spiritual and emotional bondage unless he allows God to direct his life.

Economic and physical bondage may also befall the ungodly. Prisons bulge with such victims.

Gov. Bradford humbly acknowledged it was God's world; he sought divine guidance and protection, directed his people to do likewise, and thanked God when their petitions were granted.

Obedience and gratitude to God is all we need to break America's shackles and make us free again.

While Planning Forced, It's Scarce In Capitol

By CARROLL WILSON

With its usual attitude that the people of the country are bumptkins who cannot solve their problems without aid from a superior source, the federal government decreed some years back that all states form regional planning units.

These units were forced upon the states with the federal government holding over the states' heads the threat of a cut-off of federal funds if such units were not formed.

Coercion was used and used without even trying to hide the fact.

Then, the states were broken down into planning regions, one of which is the 26 counties of the Texas Panhandle. Again, the coercion was there. If we didn't form a regional planning commission in the Panhandle, federal funds for projects wanted and needed by cities and counties in the Panhandle would be stopped.

So, we formed the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission primarily as an effort to keep the federal money flowing.

Since then, the commission has burgeoned, its budget expanding phenomenally.

The primary mission of the PRPC is planning, long-range planning on what to do about solid waste management, what to do about transportation.

Dozens of studies on various regional-wide problems have been made under the auspices of the PRPC. Planning is its forte and its only legitimate reason for existing, and it was instituted by a federal administration which must have believed that such long- and short-range planning was an absolute pre-requisite for effective government expenditure and effective government itself.

But, obviously, the federal administration's coercive demand that the states and the counties plan how to use federal money is a one-way street.

While we have been forced to plan to use money effectively, the federal government has proven itself absolutely incompetent to even define a problem to be planned.

We speak, of course, of the energy crisis.

State Sen. Max Sherman told an audience here Friday that six years ago and again three years ago the Texas Railroad Commission wrote to Presidents Johnson and Nixon warning them of impending fuel disaster. The message went unheeded.

It is reasonable to suggest the federal government did not plan for the energy crisis. It is reasonable to assume that the frantic efforts in Washington now to alleviate the problem are indication of this lack of planning.

Obviously, the federal government still goes along with the idea that we in the hinterlands should do as they say and not as they do.

Doesn't it stretch the imagination somewhat to believe that the energy crisis is upon us full blown, with talk of rationing and related remedies, when even we in the hinterlands knew years ago the administration's fuel policies were going to get us into trouble.

Where is the long-range planning at the federal level, the kind of planning the government has forced the states to perform?

Where is the kind of foresight such planning would accrue?

It would be cynical to say the energy crisis has provided a convenient and well-timed diversion for President Nixon to get the American mind off Watergate.

But, one who has seen the federal desire for planning at all levels carried to coercive extremes could make a logical case for just such a proposition.

And, he might point to the interesting and large donations to the president's re-election effort from major oil companies for some substantiation. After all, one wouldn't expect the oil companies to lose profits when the price of gasoline skyrockets to $1 per gallon.

The real issue, I'm afraid, is that the federal government is mired in worthless and bureaucratic make-work, with paperwork going from desk to desk laterally but never reaching any decision-maker.

We are living in a time filled with inconsistencies which can only be explained by saying we are led ineptly by persons whose foresight extends only four years into the future and only in the political, not the practical realm.

A Review

Encore For Singer

By JOHN CARPENTER

WTSU Music Professor

A contralto voice of very lyric and flexible quality was demonstrated by Marvella Cariaga in a performance Tuesday in Amarillo under auspices of the Canyon Community Concerts Association.

The enthusiastic insistence of an appreciative audience resulted in two encores for the highly-acclaimed Miss Cariaga, who has graced such stages as the Los Angeles Shrine Auditorium and the San Diego Opera House. The talented performer is scheduled to sing the role of "Amneris" in an upcoming performance of "Aida" this spring by the San Francisco Opera.

Her Amarillo recital appearance will stand out as a memorable success to all in attendance. Miss Cariaga's artistry, poise and intimacy with the audience were hallmarks of her performance. A rich vocal quality was easily displayed by the singer both in sustained phrases and rapid passages such as those in the opening Handel aria. Her feel for the Italian language set in a Baroque "bel canto" style was very complete and convincing.

The second group of songs performed by Miss Cariaga were by Schubert. Here, the stylistic change from the Handel proved to be an opportunity for the contralto to engage in a contrasting, smooth-flowing vocal posture which aptly suited the realism of the early Romantic period.

Miss Cariaga eagerly displayed her ability to conform to any vocal style called for in her challenging repertoire. Her top range, although not completely matched with her middle register, was nonetheless brilliant and nicely-shaped. The dramatic intent of this group of songs was fully carried over to the audience and culminated in a well-directed and energetic "Rustle of Leaves."

The aria, "Mon coeur s'ouvre a ta voix" from Saint-Saens' "Samson et Dalila" is usually sung by a mezzo-soprano, but Miss Cariaga again demonstrated her flexibility of range in its performance.

The aria from "The Consul" was handled with real understanding, with the dramatic intensity of the work fully conveyed to the audience. Miss Cariaga seemed to actually experience the depth of understanding and sympathy of the secretary who is the object of the dialogues in the aria. In most cases, Miss Cariaga's voice responded nicely to the artistic and theatrical demands of her repertoire.

Samuel Barber's "Hermit Songs" seemed well-suited to the artist's talents. Miss Cariaga seemed to identify very closely with them, relishing their subdued humor.

The selection by John Cage was certainly indicative of Miss Cariaga's above-average sense of pitch. The challenging work has no tonal accompaniment and only rhythmic tapping of irregular, disjointed ideas on the closed keyboard shutter.

The "American" group of selections contained one of the most delightful experiences of the evening. The format consisted of a group of short songs consisting of court decisions across the country set to music. These "Recent Rulings," as they were entitled, ranged in humorous diversity from those involving disturbances of the peace to nudity.

The lesser known Arthur Frackenpohl work supplied Miss Cariaga with what she needed to bring out the humor to the audience. Laughter ensued after each little vignette and Miss Cariaga never relinquished her poise in the midst of the deluge of chuckles. She closed the well-planned program with an old favorite, "Climb Ev'ry Mountain."

Kudos must also go to Mr. Harold Heiberg, who more than adequately filled the position of Miss Cariaga's accompanist. Heiberg serves as accompanist coach at North Texas State University at Denton and is claimed as an authority on "lieder" and opera by performers and directors in America and abroad.

Together, Miss Cariaga and Mr. Heiberg proved an irresistible combination that won the hearts of their listeners.

Where Is WT Spirit

Dear Editor:

Where is the spirit of WTSU supporters?

Family ties are supposed to be close ties. The "Buffs" and coaches are a part of the family at WTSU, but one wonders about it after observing the many empty stadium seats, and nonchalant attitudes of far too many fair weather fans at the Tampa game. As a member of your family, would you desert it when any one member is down? Or are you a fair weather friend who sticks when all is well?

Where is the school spirit at WTSU? I wondered more about this, especially after hearing a conversation between two women, following the game.

Let's give our coaches and players our moral support. Be truly a part of one great family, and "stick together through thick and thin."

Look to the future. We have some fine athletes and coaches and a promising group of freshmen who certainly need your cooperation if we are to continue having a fine football program at WTSU.

Sincerely,
Mary E. Jones

Fish 'n Fowl

By GARY CONNER

The geese have arrived in larger concentrations now and the hunting is good in spots. They are not highly concentrated, but are broken up mostly in small flocks which is good. I sighted approximately 1500 last week in a one-morning period. One small bunch of about 40 snow geese also was sighted.

Bob West, Texas wildlife biologist, reported the sighting of approximately 3500, mostly in the Hereford area.

The duck hunting seems to get better the farther west one goes from Dawn.

A TEXAS WATERFOWL guided hunt last Sunday was successful taking eight Canada geese and a near limit on ducks. Ten ducks including mallard, pintail, wedgeon, teal, and wood duck were taken. Yes, I said wood duck. Several greenheads were passed up waiting for the geese to decoy. Included in the hunting were Don Myers, Don Logan, and Jim Jordan of Amarillo. Jim is president of the Labrador Retriever Club in Amarillo.

These were the first geese Jim had killed, and he must have been proud of those birds because he almost wore out a polaroid taking pictures.

Pheasant season opens in about three weeks on Dec. 8 and is open until Dec. 23. The pheasant crop looks better west of Canyon than I have seen in the past few years.

Pheasant hunters who need a place to hunt can contact TEXAS WATERFOWL and schedule a morning hunt for any day of the season. The price is $10 a gun and two coocks are guaranteed. Guided combination duck-geese hunts can also be arranged.

If you would like a hunting or fishing trip report put in the paper call me, Gary Conner or The Canyon News. Any outdoor information is of interest to a segment of the people so give me a call, 353-4527.

Those high flying birds people have been seeing coming over Canyon are mostly sandhill cranes. Seems it takes them forever to pass because of all those lazy circle patterns they make. I guess they are delaying because of all that shooting going on over at Muleshoe. I don't think I would want to get there too fast either.

tickets. But, by Feb. 1, 1943, a localized system of issuing ration tickets was initiated through the federal office of price administration.

Petersen said the mechanics of the system were simple. A car owner would simply take his vehicle to the office, explain how he used his car and the board would issue a sticker and ration book based on how he used his car.

An A sticker was issued to more than one-half the population, a sticker meaning the car was used for other than absolutely essential business.

For those with A stickers, the ration was four gallons per week originally, and that amount was cut to three gallons per week later and to even two gallons per said, the secretary of the interior was telling the nation's populace that no energy problem existed.

In December 1970, the commission wrote another letter, this time to President Nixon urging a national energy policy, a policy to expand exploratory drilling and increase the nation's reserves.

The letter received no answer. Now, he said, everyone in Washington is running amok to find the answer to the energy crisis.

Sherman said he fears that in the confusion which surrounds a crash program on energy policy may result in policies which are not in the long run well thought out or good.

While in the energy field, the administration turned a deaf ear to the warnings of acknowledged experts on the status of resources, Sherman said the state electorate proved itself just as deaf when it failed to pass by 5000 votes an amendment several years ago which would have implemented the Texas Water Importation plan.

"The people who would have benefited most didn't bother to go to the polls," he said.

Even so, he said, several water districts have been formed in Texas to study water importation or other water resource plans on a regional basis.

But, Sherman noted, the federal government has recently passed new standards for funding of water projects and the funding could have a disastrous effect on any water resource plan.

He said Congressional legislation has virtually cut off federal funding.

And without federal funding the future of water projects could be bleak, he said.

A B sticker was issued to those who used their cars for essential business at least part of the time and a C sticker went to those, who like doctors, used the car for essential business.

"In some places there were real problems with rationing just getting enough gasoline to meet the ration," Petersen said, relating the story of the 350 vehicles following the New York gasoline truck to its destination.

Besides, rationing's effect on individuals, it also had a drastic effect on tax revenues for gasoline. New York State lost 50 per cent of its revenue through rationing.

Another significant development was a rise in crime related to theft of gasoline.

Petersen cited figures which show that during the first 18 months of rationing, 1300 persons were convicted of black market activities, 4000 service stations lost their licenses and 32,500 motorists lost their ration books.

"Ironically, the Mafia moved into the business, too," Petersen said, "because it was an easy transition from bootlegging liquor to bootlegging gasoline."

He said it was reported that more than $20 million worth of ration books were stolen one night from a Washington, D.C. warehouse.

In January 1943, the government banned all pleasure driving in the country and set out standards for essential driving, standards which described as essential such things as funerals, the downtown and 23rd Street area of Canyon.

President Raymond Raillard said spokesmen for Southwestern Public Service Co. say there's plenty of electricity and residents should not be hesitant to use the power for Christmas lighting but should use some frugality.

The directors also named eight nominees whose names will be submitted to the chamber membership this week as candidates for the board of directors.

Chamber members will be asked to vote for four of the candidates to serve out the expiring terms of four current directors.

The directors serve for three years.

Outgoing directors are David West, Cary Magness, Ken Thompson and Dr. Charles Smallwood.

Directors also set the price for the annual Chamber banquet scheduled for Jan. 26 at the West Texas State University cafeteria at $5 per person, more than $1 less than last year's cost.

Dr. Lloyd L. Watkins, will be keynote speaker for the banquet.

West reported to the board on the status of a project to have U.S. 60 redesignated an interstate highway and said he was assured by officials of the Texas Highway Department that they envision any interstate linking Amarillo with Las Cruces, N.M., as travelling virtually the course of U.S. 60 through Canyon.

The possibility that the highway might by-pass Canyon to the north was raised Tuesday night when local representatives learned that Canyon was not specifically included in the federal highway act passed by Congress in August. In that bill, the route recommended included passage through Amarillo, Hereford and other cities to the west.

"The state highway department man said he can see no reason why an interstate can't go on 60 through Canyon," West said. "He envisions the thing going right through here."

A Farmers Union exhibit showing the production cycle of grain sorghum, chief money crop in the county, was displayed by Mrs. Allen Downing of Canyon.

The more than 500 guests were welcomed to the campus by university president Dr. Lloyd L. Watkins.

WTSU Buffaloes Beaten By Southern Mississippi In Home Game

West Texas State University Coach Gene Mayfield reverted to his early-season swap-out on quarterbacks and the Buffaloes assumed a methodical and plodding offensive stance during the final quarter Saturday night to make one deep penetration into Southern Mississippi territory. The effort was to no avail as the Buffs lost 0-28.

Before an unenthusiastic crowd of fewer than 3000 fans at Kimbrough Stadium, Mayfield's Buffaloes lost whatever defensive edge they gained last week against Tampa and the defense equalled the offense in inconsistency.

Running a variety of running backs throughout the game, Mayfield allowed Quarterback Don Nava three quarters to make his touted throwing arm pay off and then opted for Mike Wofford during the final stanza for a more deliberate game which saw the Buffs push close to paydirt.

The game ended for the Buffs after a 64-yard push which began at the WTSU 36-yard line.

Warts during the series of downs proved he also owns a throwing arm as he hit three of seven passes to help move the ball to inside the SMU 20-yard line. A final Warts pass on a fourth and six situation fell incomplete in the end zone intended for Mike Losano and the ball went over for a few seconds of play by the Eagles.

The Buffs, under the generalship of Nava, also threatened late in the first half, driving from their own 23 all the way to the SMU 3 before running into a deadly fourth down situation.

Nava passed eight times and hit five for the majority of the yardage in that drive which began with about 3 minutes remaining in the initial half.

The running of Freshman back Don Jackson was stymied during the series, as well as through the night, by the Eagle defense. Jackson had been leading groundgainer for the Buffs against Tampa last week.

The Eagles dominated play throughout the night, handling the ball 21 minutes out of 30 of the first half of play.

They scored their first touchdown with 2:41 remaining in the first quarter on a Wilson Plunkett run for three yards to climax a 12-play and 48-yard drive.

They scored again late in the second stanza after a Nava aerial was intercepted by Rich Gemmel on the WTSU 37.

The next Eagle score came with five minutes remaining in the third quarter after the Buffs found they could not make a first down on a fourth and seven attempt. Terrence Wells ran over right tackle for one yard and the score. With a majority of the game played out, the Eagles held a safe 21-0 margin.

Early in the fourth quarter, the Eagles made their final touchdown with Quarterback Jeff Bower hitting Willie Thieken for a 15-yard pass to score with 13:17 remaining in the game. Leading groundgainer for the Eagles was Doyle Orange with 128 yards.

The loss dropped the Buffaloes to a season record showing two wins and eight losses. The Buffs meet Louisville in another Missouri Valley Conference bout at 1:30 p.m. Saturday in Kimbrough Stadium.

Local Women Share Thanksgiving Ideas

By CAROL YOUNG

In green or yellow category, any green or yellow vegetable is popular, but one item that is used in many families is mashed sweet potatoes with melted marshmallows on top. Many people who were asked about this dish said that they had heard of it, but never tried it. This is a tradition in this reporter's family that never gets left out. Mrs. Betty Donnell, Happy, added that she uses a little cinnamon in the potatoes that she serves this way.

Mashed Sweet Potatoes and Marshmallows

One medium sweet potato or yam per person to be served. Peel, slice and boil as for mashed white potatoes.

Cook until soft, add dab of butter, mash or whip with hand mixer.

Place in buttered baking pan or pie dish, top with miniature or regular size marshmallows.

Melt marshmallows under broiler or in hot oven until browned.

Mrs. Tom Lemons, better known as Rena, a WTSU student and native of Canyon, contributed a recipe for Green Rice that she and her mother, Mrs. Charles R. Hillier, like especially well with turkey.

Green Rice

2 cups cooked rice
2 eggs, beaten
1/4 lb. grated old English cheese
1/2 cup dried parsley
1/2 cup cooking oil
1 clove garlic or 1/4 tsp. garlic salt, or 1/4 tsp. garlic powder or to taste
1 large can condensed milk
Salt and pepper to taste
Mix ingredients and place in casserole. Place casserole in pan of water. Bake 45 minutes at 350°. Take from oven and let set, if not firm enough put back in oven for 5 minutes without water.

Mrs. Joan Castleman, News bookkeeper, made reference to a recipe for Green Rice she likes that serves 30. In this recipe, broccoli and cream of mushroom soup are used. If broccoli is a favorite this could be added to the above recipe in a proportionate amount.

Turkey and dressing are not the only foods served at Thanksgiving. Many families have favorite recipes that have been used for generations and Thanksgiving just wouldn't be the same without them. Some of the ladies in Canyon consented to share their favorites with the public.

Mrs. Max Bosley Jr., president of the Edgetown Home Demonstration Club offered this recipe for Cherry Delight. She said that her family uses it for a salad, but that some might consider it to be a dessert.

Cherry Delight

1 can Eagle Brand milk
1/2 cup lemon juice (may be fresh or bottled)
1/2 cup chopped nuts
1 cup chopped maraschino cherries
2 cups whipped cream
Mix milk and lemon juice together, set aside. Chop nuts and cherries and stir into milk mixture. Fold in whipped cream and place in refrigerator to chill.

Cranberries are more or less a tradition at Thanksgiving and Mrs. James Dietz, president of the Jovell Home Demonstration Club offered this recipe for Cranberry Salad.

Cranberry Salad

2 cups uncooked cranberries
1 small orange
1 orange peel
1 apple
1 cup nuts
1 small can crushed pineapple
1 cup sugar
1 package raspberry gelatin
1 cup boiling water
Chop cranberries, orange, orange peel, apple and nuts; add pineapple, sugar and gelatin dissolved in boiling water. Chill until firm.

Something that this reporter's relatives have fixed for a relish type dish is stuffed celery. Now there's just not a whole lot one can stuff as fast as celery is concerned.

Stuffed Celery

1 or 2 packages of green onion dip mix (depending on how many are to be served)

Prepare according to directions with cream cheese, not sour cream. Let mixture set for about 30 min. at room temperature. Wash and "peel" celery. Fill groove of celery and mound with mixture. Chill.

Mrs. Bernard Grabber, president of the Highland Home Demonstration Club offered this recipe for Buttermilk Pie for those who do not care for pumpkin pie.

Buttermilk Pie

In bottom of unbaked pie shell put layer of raisins (can be omitted) on top of this, pour the following mixture:
1/2 cup sugar
4 tbs. flour
4 egg yolks
1/2 cup buttermilk
1/2 cup melted butter or margarine
1 tsp. vanilla
Mix together and pour into pie shell. Cook until firm, about 35-45 minutes in 350° oven. Top with meringue and brown.

"Tartuffe," "Fables" In Production Monday At Branding Iron Theatre

A famous Moliere comedy and a premiere performance of a work by a former West Texas State University student are slated for production Monday in the Intimate Theatre of the WT Fine Arts Building.

"Tartuffe" is slated for performance at 7:30 p.m. and will be followed by "Fables," a trilogy of plays by Jerry McDonough, Jr., an Amarillo graduate of WTSU. The presentation is free to the public. The Moliere comedy will be presented in a modern reader's theatre production condensed and directed by Alvena McCullough, graduate student from Canyon.

The action of "Tartuffe" revolves around the title character, a notorious religious pretender who makes a cuckold of the wealthy Parisian who, fooled by Tartuffe's mock piety, takes the man into his home. Tartuffe subsequently proceeds to take over the household.

The comedy of manners is narrated by Helen Wheir of Amarillo.

Others cast include Lynda Robertson, Dennis McCormick, Mike Gilbert, Suzanne Ellinwood, Mickey Purcell, Bennie Watson, Darlene Clark, Jim Pat Mitchell, Jerry L. Moore and Mindy Brewster.

The 17th century farce plays back-to-back with the McDonough play, written in the theatre of absurd idiom.

"Fables" consists of three short vignettes, "Clowns," "The Boy" and "Drums." The production is a directing project of Ron Williams, Canyon senior. Doug Stewart of Amarillo, Shelly Hamrick of Dallas, Randy Clements of Hereford, Terry Wilkes of Meador, Russ Chisum of Dalhart, Billy Black of El Paso, Julie Brantley of Canyon and Pam Hurst of El Paso.

"Clowns," the first tale deals with human beings frittering away their lives, putting off everything until an ever-elusive tomorrow, according to director Williams.

"Boy," the second work in the trilogy, focuses upon a man known by some kind of inchoate fear and trying to run away from society, Williams said.

The third piece, "Drums," makes a bold anti-war statement. Presented in black comedy style, "Drums" pans in on the absurdity of war and warmongers.

Funeral Services Held For Accident Victim

Funeral services were held here Wednesday for Johnny Lee Smith, 28, a Friona resident who was killed Monday when a truck he was riding in overturned near Alamogordo, N.M.

Smith was the brother of Mrs. Marlene Howell of Route 2, Canyon.

Services were conducted at the LaGrone Funeral Chapel with the Rev. A. J. Pettit of the Canyon Assembly of God officiating. Burial was in Dreamland Cemetery.

Smith was employed by the R. M. Trucking Co. operating out of Clovis, N.M.

The accident occurred at 8:05 a.m. when the contents of the truck shifted, causing the vehicle to overturn. Smith, who was asleep in the cab when the accident occurred, was dead at the scene. The driver of the truck escaped serious injuries.

Other survivors include Smith's wife, Phyllis of Friona; one daughter, Jennifer Lee, of the home; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Smith of Wichita Falls; one brother, Charles A. Smith of Huntsville, and three grandparents, Mrs. Effie Lester of Lubbock, Charley Hargraves of Dike, Tex. and Mrs. Lee Smith of Hollis, Okla.

County To Eye Fuel Savings In Mon. Meet

County commissioners are scheduled to continue discussion on methods of conserving fuel and other materials in light of the national fuel crisis during their Monday meeting.

Commissioners will meet at 1 p.m. in the courthouse to continue discussion on the fuel situation begun only briefly last Monday.

They will also meet with Bob Davis of Columbia Securities Corporation to continue discussion on ways to finance construction of a new courthouse annex in South Amarillo.

Davis met with the commission three weeks ago and suggested a financial route which would eliminate the ability of voters to call a referendum vote on the commission decision.

Other items scheduled for discussion include the signing of a contract with the City of Canyon for services the two entities are

School Board To Eye Legal Side Of Annex

The fuel shortage will be a major item for discussion for Canyon School Board members when they meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the high school.

Members are also to meet with a representative of the Amarillo School Board concerning legal opinions relative to the possible annexation by Amarillo of 11½ sections of land in the north part of the county.

The Canyon board asked the Amarillo board to investigate their legal options in connection with their desire to annex the property about a month ago when a representative of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce met with the board to propose formation of a separate study committee on the annexation.

The board is also expected to consider approval of the district's 1972-73 audit report.

The official textbook committee for the next year will be appointed and discussion will begin on a policy for early graduation from Canyon High School.

Alpha Theta Delta Has Pledge Ritual

Pledge Rituals for the Alpha Theta Delta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi were held Monday evening in the home of Mrs. Paul Stevenson, with the president, Mrs. James Hill, officiating.

Mrs. Hill called the regular meeting to order following the ceremony, and business discussed included a report from the Ways and Means Chairman, Mrs. Steve Hines, on proceeds from the Halloween Carnival.

A Thanksgiving food basket, the Chapter's project, was completed and is awaiting delivery to a Canyon family by Mrs. Dick Maxwell, chairman of the Service Committee, and members of her committee.

Plans have been made to deliver the basket on Thursday. Members voted to hold the annual Christmas dinner at the Hilton Inn this year. As in previous years, gifts will be presented to each member's secret sister.

Mrs. Steve Hines and Mrs. Judy Hill presented the program for the evening on Prose. They discussed the short story and the novel and used a large display to illustrate literary works. Particular emphasis was placed on American authors.

Present at the Rituals and meeting were pledge, Mrs. Martha Bethel and members, Mesdames Linda Conway, Virginia Grimes, Hill, Hines, Sue Lewis, Theresa Lewis, Naja Maxwell, Linda Daniels, and Stevenson.

Woman's Book Club Hears Local Artist

The Woman's Book Club met Wednesday afternoon at the First United Methodist Church of Canyon to hear Canyon artist Mrs. Glenna Wilson speak on "Art in the Top of Texas."

In her discussion she pointed out the steadily increasing interest in arts and crafts throughout the Panhandle. She ranked two local galleries, in her opinion, among the finest in Texas. Those being the Canyon Art Gallery and the Panhandle Plains Museum Gallery that exhibit works of top ranking Texas artists as well as out-of-state painters.

She stated that numerous opportunities are afforded area artists to display their works. An example of this opportunity was the Starving Artists' Show, annually presented by Panhandle artists, which draws hundreds of exhibitors and buyers.

At this time, the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring an exhibit in the Civic Center provided by the Fine Arts Society, Mrs. Wilson reported. She credits Dr. Emilio Caballero, head of the Art Department at West Texas State University, with the increasing number of arts and crafts in area communities, such as Dumas, Borger, and Happy.

Mrs. Wilson's display of artistry included pen and ink drawings, water colors, oil paintings, combinations of watercolor and driftwood, and knotwork paintings on cottonwood and mesquite. She believes that nature supplies adequate objects for the artists palette.

The center front of the auditorium was decorated with a fan shaped arrangement of white gladiolas and tangerine carnations, flanked on either side by spiral candelabra trimmed with greenery. Candles and draped boxwood roping decorated the aisle.

Her Mantilla style veil was bordered with lace and fell from a headpiece of small roses. She carried a cascade bouquet of miniature white carnations and baby's breath.

At a reception following the ceremony in the fellowship hall of the church, a table covered with satin and an over-cloth of lace, featured a center arrangement of a five branch candelabra decked with miniature white carnations, exotic gold Kalanchoes, and tangerine carnations. Senate, and that he hoped to be able to meet with the investigative committee soon to discuss the matter.

The physician declined to comment on specific incidents in question because to do so, he said, would violate the patient-physician confidentiality which Neblett doctors are legally bound to maintain.

Dr. Nester said that the Neblett staff was not "angry but rather hurt" about allegations of poor treatment made by students. He also expressed his desire to "get things out in the open and settled."

The clinic has provided medical care for students at WTSU since 1937, and one of the main objectives for building the facility was to provide the service for students at the university, Dr. Nester said.

Payment for medical care is included in the student service fee which is paid by each student at the beginning of each semester. The medical service fee is $6.50 per student taking seven or more hours.

Miss Davidson emphasized the fact that the investigation was not being pursued "to intimidate the physicians or hurt anybody's reputation."

"We just want to be assured that students are getting good, quality service, because that's what they're paying for."

She said the first step the committee will take in its investigation will be to compile written reports of specific complaints by students.

Evaluation forms to be filled out by students who visit the clinic will be sent out through the student senators and will be made available in the dormitories and at the campus health center, she said.

Based on what students have told her of their treatment at the clinic, Miss Davidson said that she could "positively say that the investigation is going to yield complaints."

She said there was a general feeling at the school that students are not receiving the same kind of treatment at the clinic as Canyon residents.

"Many have told me that because you're a student, you have to sit and wait for 45 minutes to see a doctor, who maybe tells you to take an aspirin and go to bed."

"I don't know if the physicians are just not taking the time to give students a thorough check-up or what, but for some reason, students are not satisfied by the services. I know of lots of students that go elsewhere for medical care rather than to use these prepaid services at Neblett."

Dr. Nester stated in an interview that no difference exists between medical care given Canyon residents and WTSU students. The impartiality exists oftentimes because physicians are "not even aware about whether a patient is a student or not," he said.

Both Dr. Nester and Miss Davidson said they felt the investigative committee and the clinic would be able to work together amicably in the investigation.

Last year, members of the Student Senate visited the medical facilities of five schools and, based on their findings, suggested four proposals to clinic officials, one of which was accepted by the physicians.

Accepted by the clinic was the Senate proposal calling for treatment of venereal disease (specifically excluded from the list of services provided in the past), free inoculations and emergency room care. The ten days of hospitalization included in the original contractual agreement between the clinic and the Board of Regents was reduced to four days following the Senate findings that "no student seemed to have been hospitalized at Neblett for as long as ten days," Miss Davidson said.

A senate proposal that the health services include pregnancy testing for women students was rejected by hospital officials.

Commenting on the recent resolution, Dr. T. Paige Carruth, vice-president for student affairs, said that the clinic has provided "exceptionally good service to the school over the years."

"We are aware that occasionally — and I mean very infrequently — we get a grievance. But in such situations, Neblett is always anxious to correct any errors made."

"I think the Senate's objective in this investigation is to call attention to some problem areas in medical services from the student point of view," Carruth added.

ADPi Alumnae Have Friendship Night

The Alpha Delta Pi Alumnae Association of Canyon had a regular meeting Tuesday evening that was designated as Greek Friendship night. Alumnae members of national sororities were invited to attend.

Hostesses for the evening were Carolyn Blackburn, Marita Crowder, Mildred Cannon, and Joyce Rushmer.

Mrs. Lorene Olsen, president, introduced the guest speaker, Bill Sarpoulis, registrar at Boys Ranch.

He was 12 years old when he went there to live and considers Boys Ranch to be his home. Some information he gave about Boys Ranch was that one out of fifteen applications were accepted and that approximately 325 boys live there.

His talk centered on President Johnson's words to young people, "Dream dreams, and make them come true." The audience was reminded by Sarpoulis that they live in a strong country of two hundred million Americans and this country was founded as a free nation.

Another point he made was, "We take things for granted." An example cited concerned a personal experience he had when speaking at a school to several hundred students. The flag was raised that morning, but he asked that it be taken down. During his speech, he asked how many noticed the flag as they came in. Everyone raised their hand, then he held up the flag. "The flag is always flying, so everyone just assumed that it was that day," he said.

"We should be thankful we can dream and make them come true," Sarpoulis stated. For example, to dream about an education and be able to get it. "Be thankful you are able to walk, talk, see and worship your own God. Even if you don't have all these things, don't be a quitter," he advised, and used Jim Ryan, Helen Keller and Michael J. Downing as examples, because they dreamed, believed, and were not known as quitters.

As a final note, he told the audience, "Thank God you have a home to go to. Look at what you have and be thankful."

Businesses To Close For Thanksgiving Day

At WTSU, the library will close at 1 p.m. Wednesday and will remain closed through Saturday. It

Friendship Club Met For Luncheon

The Friendship Sewing Club met Thursday at the Trade Winds Restaurant in Amarillo for their annual Thanksgiving luncheon.

Club reporter, Mrs. Clarence Winters said "Everything was perfect, the food was delicious and all of us were well pleased with the service." Mrs. Virgil Knight was commended for her efforts made with the arrangements for the luncheon.

Resident Slain In Amarillo

Amarillo police were still investigating Saturday the brutal slaying of Canyon resident Clem Eugene Pope, 43, of 1103 7th Ave., whose body was found before 8 a.m. Friday in a barrow ditch in north Amarillo.

Two suspects were reported arrested late Friday in connection with the slaying.

Officials said when Pope was found, he had no identification or personal articles. It was believed theft may have been a motive for the killing since he was believed to have been carrying about $200 at the time.

Pope, an unemployed farm laborer in the Canyon area, had been stabbed, shot and run over by a car according to autopsy reports. It was believed that he had been killed during the night Thursday.

FHA Bake Sale Set For Tues.

Waste Problems Due City Look

Discussion is expected to center Monday night around future coordination in the area of solid waste management for Canyon city commissioners.

Commissioners meet at 7 p.m. at the community center.

City Manager George Loudder is expected to recommend to commissioners that a standing committee of the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission be formed to carry out continuous planning and coordination for solid waste management in the Potter-Randall county area.

An ad hoc committee studying waste management for the PRPC has asked local governmental bodies to recommend ways of continuing the thrust of their coordination effort.

The commissioners are also expected to sign a contract with Randall County agreeing to accept $18,000 per year in a trade of services.

LIFE STYLE OF THE FUTURE

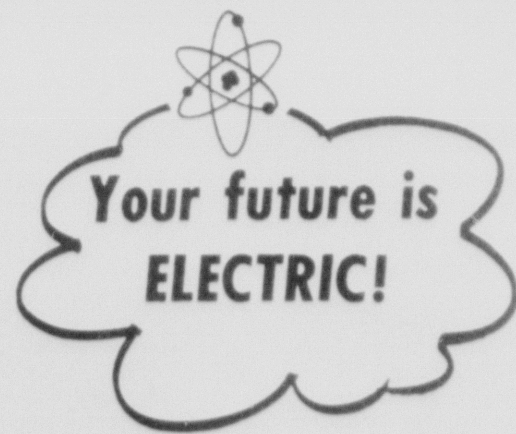

What will be the life style of the future? One thing we can be sure of . . . it will revolve around electricity. Without electric energy there is no hope of getting the pollution eliminators that only electricity can operate.

We'll need our factories, our refineries, our water treatment plants . . . all the things necessary for survival in a modern civilization.

But, without electricity none of these can function.

That's why our industry and we, as a Company, continuously plan for the future . . . contribute toward research and development of better, more efficient ways to get electricity to you.

We know we'll be needed in the future even as we are now . . . and we'll be there when the time comes . . . even as we are now . . . making sure that every kilowatt you buy is 100% usable.

Come To THE YUM YUM TREE
and leave the cooking to us. . .
